Republicans contend that the projects cannot be justified economically.

There is only one Arkansas project in the bill to which the Republicans have not objected—the St. Francis basin project which would carry an authorization of $35,874,000.

Since Democrats control Congress, prospects are they can send the bill to the White House after a sharp skirmish in the House.

But in view of the President's previous veto, the strong Republican opposition to some projects, and an expected drive to pare government expenses and programs in order to boost defense spending, a veto of the measure would not be unexpected.

DOROTHY DIX

Girl Hands Boy a Fancy Line Then Wants to Be Rid of Him

Dear Dorothy Dix: After a friendship of seven months, I find Clarence is becoming quite serious about me. He's 17 and I'm 18. Now for the problem. I've been stringing him along with quite a collection of fobs. I like him very much, but that's it. I told him I was 17, and have assured him of my love, going so far as to describe my possible jealousy if he ever took another girl out. All this is untrue. I want to get into circulation again, but how can I break off with the guy after handing him this fancy line? I know I was wrong, but thought everything would automatically end after a while. I admit I've been a fool, but what do I do next?

Dear Flora: The next thing you do is ask Clarence over for an evening and have a frank talk with him. Tell him your real age. Say you want to get back into circulation, that you're too young to go steady, and that you misinterpreted your own interest in him. I hope he swallows it, because I'd hate to see the boy's faith in all women lost because of one, inconsiderate, selfish damsel.

Dear Dorothy Dix: Hal and I broke up after going steady for six months. I know he doesn't care especially about me now, and I certainly am not carrying a torch for him. However, he seems determined that I don't have any other dates. When a boy begins to show interest in me, Hal tells him my folks are very strict (they're not).

Of course, this discourages the boy. MISS X. Dear Miss X.: Plan a counter-attack. Surely in your group there are enough girls and boys who are familiar with things at your home and who will be willing to spread the word that your folks are very nice and any boy who wangles an invitation to your home is lucky indeed.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I left my husband, after being married for four years, because he was running around with other women. Also, he would not set up a home for me. We lived with his mother who was very disagreeable to me and our baby. My husband was quite content to be rid of us — until he was ordered by the court to pay $50 a month for the baby's support. Now he wants me to come back to him, but still refuses to leave his mother's house. T. M.

Dear T. M.: Don't go. Obviously the strain of paying that $50 made him decide it was cheaper to have you back. If he's in earnest, he'll establish a home for you. Hold out for it.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I'm a teenager and hang around with a girl much older than I am. She attracts all the boys with her wisecracks and personality. I try saying amusing things like she does, and imitate her in everything, but the boys just don't pay any attention to me. LULUBELLE

Dear Lulubelle: Imitation may grammar school, and one of them is, in my opinion as cultured as any man I ever met. "All races religions and political points of view are as evenly divided among producers as in any representative segment of the American community."

Aren't producers phone-mad, luncheon-addicted, party-crazy? "I have only two phones on my desk," replied Hornblow. "And one is private. It is for the use of my wife."

"The number of your phones isn't as important as the efficiency of your secretary. "We do go to a lot of lunches, but we use luncheons as we use phones—to conduct business. The same is true of Hollywood parties. "The reason for a Hollywood party is not to hold an orgy — but to do business."

"It's more like a Quaker meeting. The men and women separate immediately."

"The women talk about their children, their cooks, their plans be the sincerest form of flattery sometimes, but never should you turn yourself into a carbon copy of someone else, especially when you're imitating things that aren't particularly admirable in themselves."

"The way to impress boys — or anyone else is to be yourself. You may not attract hordes of boys, as your girl friend does, but the ones you do acquire will like you, and not someone you are trying to imitate. Give up the wisecracks, girl; they are never the way to lasting popularity."

to visit Europe. The men talk business, make contacts settle business.

"In 15 minutes at one party when I was preparing to make 'Gaslight,' I got Ingrid Bergman and Charles Boyer to play the leads. If I had had to deal through their agents, this could have taken six months."

What is wrong with the movie business today?

"If anything kills the film industry it won't be the disinterest of the public," said Hornblow. "It will be the green badge of vanity—the exorbitant money demands of talent for purposes of prestige."

"It will be the demands of stars, directors and writers—their insistence on high salaries which the tax laws won't even allow them to keep."

"Everyone is attached to the tail of the kite of the most successful man in town in his field. This attitude threatens Hollywood with economic dddddd" blow's point was that a novel that once could be bought for $30,000 now costs $300,000, a star who once would take $50,000 for a picture now wants a guarantee several times that large and so do writers and directors. His further point was that, in most cases, as a result of tax laws, these demands had become symbols of prestige rather than actual take-home pay."

"The range of what Hollywood is prepared to pay for anything should be cut in half," he said. "Then the movie industry would be healthy. Talent must take some of the risks, too."

Right or wrong, Hornblow took the most forthright bugle that has come this way from Hollywood in a long time.

Judge Pilkinton

This was good planning and fast action.

"The credit goes to the AIBC for locating the prospect, to Ray Turner and B. N. Holt of the Chamber of Commerce, to George Frazar and Garland Weathers of the city government, to B. W. Edwards, Robert LaGrone, Roy Anderson, Albert Graves and Lloyd Spencer of the Water & Light Commission."

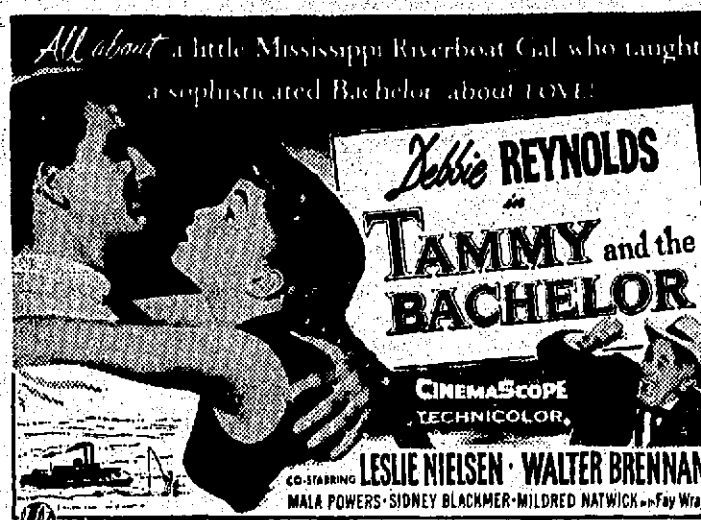

"The result of group action, in four hours time, brought this industry into Hope. I thought you were entitled to know the facts in this case. These men deserve your support and thanks."

"Other prospects will be coming along. If we have an industrial fund established, we will be in a position to act quick and to take advantage of opportunities," Judge Pilkinton concluded.

HAND PICKED for MURDER

By Robert Martin

THE STORY: Private investigator Jim Bennett is introduced to a prospective client, Hugo Howell, in a fight in a resort tavern. Jim, Howell and a man named Ambrose, Howell's companion, are taken to police headquarters. Chief Campbell says he once worked for Jim's agency.

CHAPTER III

The chief motioned me to a chair beside a small desk and sat down. He sat opposite me and clasped his thin fingers. "How did you get mixed up in this?" I told him briefly and when I'd finished he laughed softly. "So Howell doesn't know yet that he's your client? Do you mind telling me what kind of a job it is?" "I don't know the details," I said. "My secretary just told me that it involved Howell's son and a woman."

Howell or the man with him? He shook his head. "I never saw either of them before. We get a lot of strangers in here during the summer — this is a resort town."

"What about the girl? Is she a stranger, too?" He smiled. "Honey is my daughter."

For a moment I couldn't think of anything to say. Then I said, "You've got a nice girl there, Chief. She went to bat for me at the hotel."

"Honey's a good girl," he said seriously. "I don't know what I'd do without her. Her mother is an invalid — has been for years — and Honey helps take care of her and keeps house for me."

"I'm sorry to hear about your wife."

He sighed. "It's been — difficult. A series of expensive operations didn't help and she needs constant care. I provide a part-time nurse for her — I can't expect Honey to sacrifice everything — but on my salary . . . He paused and gave me a wry smile. "But I didn't mean to bore you with my personal problems. Since Howell is your client, I'll turn him loose — if you'll be responsible for him."

"Thanks, but let him sleep it off. I'll see him in the morning."

He nodded. "All right. I'll probably find him a little — I'm the mayor, too." Again he gave me his wry grin.

I got up and followed him out the door.

The pale man was still there, talking to the chief's daughter. He broke off when we appeared, came over to us, ignored me and said to the chief, "I'll be around in the morning. I'm sorry about Mr. Howell but you know how it is." He gave the chief a smile which barely cracked his bloated features. "When he's drinking, he's not well, responsible."

"Who are you?" the chief asked. "My name is Ambrose Lot. I live in Detroit."

"Howell is a friend of yours?"

"Yes. In fact I used to work for him. I'm here on a little vacation and just happened to run into him at the hotel." He gave me a furtive sidelong look and went on. "Really, Chief, Mr. Howell is not entirely to blame for the disturbance this evening." He pointed at me. "This man —"

"Never mind," the chief said, rather sharply. "I'll release you if you're around 10 in the morning." Lot hesitated a moment, his gaze shifting from the chief to me. "Okay," he said softly, and went out.

The girl said "Something about that man gives me the creeps."

I smiled at her. "It seems that I couldn't have had a better witness than the police chief's daughter."

She flushed faintly beneath the tan. "So Dad told you?"

"Honey," the chief said, "Mr. Bennett is a celebrity. He's one of the best known private detectives in the state. I recognized him from a picture in the Cleveland papers."

"Really?" She raised her smooth brows. "An honest-to-goodness private eye?"

"Please," I said, smiling. "Private investigator."

A man came in from outside. He was a young man, not too tall, but stockily built, with thick black hair parted on the side. He was deeply tanned and glasses with thick amber frames gave him

Porkers Again Favored to Nip Texas Tech Team

By HAROLD CLAASSEN

NEW YORK 19 — Bob Zuppke, famed Illinois gridiron coach of yesterday, once said the three college sports involving physical contact were football, wrestling and dancing. So off to the junior prom, Algonquin, after picking this week's winners:

Michigan State over Kansas State: The door to the Big Ten throne room is locked with Ohio State safely inside. The disappointed Spartans to take it out on lowly Kansas State.

Auburn over Florida State: The odds are against State even getting a score.

Michigan over Ohio State: Strictly on a lurch. The Ohioans won a trip to the Rose Bowl Saturday and a defeat won't cost them the Big Ten title.

Iowa over Notre Dame: Rahdy Duncan's passing to bring the Hawkeyes a cherished triumph over Notre Dame — by more than a touchdown.

Oklahoma over Nebraska: The Sooners start a new winning streak.

Duke over North Carolina: A regular jim-dandy of a brawl with Duke's big size to be the determining factor.

Tennessee over Kentucky: The clawless can't score so how can they win?

Texas Christian over Rice: No reason for this choice. But there's no reason in that topsy-turvy Southwest Conference race either.

Oregon State over Oregon: State will find a way to shackle fullback Jack Morris.

a studious look. His eyes were a clear blue and his chin was firm almost stubborn, but his mouth held a soft, sensitive look. Something about his features was familiar to me, but I couldn't place it. He wore tan walking shorts, a white T-shirt and canvas crepe-soled shoes.

"He nodded to the chief's daughter, said seriously, 'Hello, Honey,' and turned to the chief. 'Good evening, sir. I'm Wayne Howell. The bartender at the hotel told me my father was here. I wonder if I could see him?'"

"Son," the chief said kindly. "I'm afraid your dad is a little — uh — under the weather this evening. Maybe you'd better wait until morning."

"I understand," young Howell said with a trace of bitterness. "I'm sorry if he caused any trouble."

"Nothing that a little fine won't fix up," the chief said cheerfully. "I gazed at Wayne Howell and saw the resemblance to his father. Someday he would be as fat like Hugo, but I hoped he would not inherit Hugo's drinking habits. Honey Campbell said, 'Wayne, this is my father and —' She nodded at me — 'Mr. Bennett, Mr. Bennett is a private detective.' Honey said admiringly, and added hastily, 'I mean investigator.'"

Sunny Skies Over Most of Arkansas

By The Associated Press

Sunny skies today replaced rain clouds over Arkansas but high water continued to keep some rural schools closed and highways blocked.

Ten farm families late yesterday evacuated a low area south-east of Judsonia as the Little River swollen by periodic rain, threatened to leave its banks.

The U. S. Weather Bureau, predicting fair skies through tomorrow after two days of heavy rain, said the state's major rivers would continue to crest at flooding or somewhat above along their courses for the next several days. The Little Red at 38.5 feet today in the Judsonia area, was expected to reach 38 feet by tomorrow.

NATO Nuclear Stockpile Is Being Studied

WASHINGTON (UP) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said today the United States is thinking of creating several nuclear stockpiles in convenient locations in NATO countries.

He also said the United States probably will explore the possibility of establishing missile bases in continental European countries, similar to those agreed to with Britain.

Dulles said, however, the United States does not now have operational intermediate range ballistic missiles — IRBM ready for use abroad. He said he supposed it will be about the end of 1958 before they will be available for such purposes.

He said the United States probably will first discuss setting up missile bases in Europe with Gen. Lauri Norstad, supreme allied commander of Europe. Then if those discussions indicate that the United States would talk with the foreign governments involved IRBM bases would be feasible, the about actual locations.

Urban League Gives Financial Report

NORTH LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UP) — The Urban League of Greater Little Rock, an interracial organization, furnished a membership and financial report to the city of North Little Rock yesterday.

The move was in compliance with a request by the City Council under a new ordinance aimed at the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The Urban League furnished a report to the city of Little Rock recently under similar circumstances.

A civic club here also submitted data yesterday. Still to be heard from are four other organizations who were asked to provide information — including the NAACP.

At Pine Bluff the City Council last night approved an ordinance similar to those in this area.

The ordinance is modeled on a draft which Atty. Gen. Bruce Bennett sent to Arkansas cities. Pine Bluff is the eighth city in Arkansas to adopt it.

United States would talk with the foreign governments involved IRBM bases would be feasible, the about actual locations.
